London in Darkness.

Such Will Be the Case on Monday Night

IF THE STRIKE IS NOT ENDED.

Bloodshed Sure to Follow if the Number of Strikers are Increased.

All the London Tauters Called on to Stop Work—Other Foreign Dispatches.

London, Aug. 31.—Meetings were held last night by every trades union or association in London and the different workmen's societies for the purpose of taking action upon the circular issued by the dock laborers' committee in which they urge all London workmen to go on strike next Monday unless the dock company's yield to the demands of their striking employees. The importance of the decisions to be reached can scarcely be overestimated.

If a general strike is inaugurated Monday, as is contemplated by the circular, it is difficult to see how red and bloodshed can be averted. The leaders in many of the workmen's organizations are pronounced Socialists, and these have never made a secret of their convictions that the ultimate triumph of their cause can only come through violence and revolution. The present seems to be their opportunity, and if they can persuade the million toilers of the metropolis to lay down their tools on Monday it is certain that in less than a week the streets of London will be all scenes of turbulence such as no living Englishman has ever seen.

What adds vastly to the difficulties of the situation is the fact that the rank and file of London's police force are heartily in sympathy with the present strike, and would without a doubt sympathize with the participants of a general strike should it be decided upon. They subsidized liberally to the strikers relief fund, and when off duty their criticisms on the conduct of employers leave no one to doubt on which side of the conflict they would prefer to fight. In the event of the slightest trouble, therefore, the authorities would be compelled to rely upon the troops, whose rifles and bayonets would do bloody work in a crowded London street.

The gas companies early in the week were nervous about what their strikers would do, but this has come to be a matter of very little moment, as all the gas the have on hand can only last until Monday, and after that there is no way of getting a further supply. London is certain to be left in darkness Monday night if the strike continues, and after that how much longer no man can tell.

Cardinal Manning has espoused the cause of the striking dock laborers, and is pleading with the directors of the dock companies to put an end to the trouble by conceding the demands of the men.

An American Protest.

LICENSEE, Aug. 31.—Mr. Washburne, the American minister to Switzerland, has formally protested to the Swiss government against the wrongful arrest of four American tourists at Berne recently. They were charged with being pickpockets, and after being imprisoned for two days, no evidence to support the charge being found, they were released without a man as an apology. Heavy damages are claimed by the injured parties.

Americans to Be Expelled from China.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—A Shanghai dispatch to the Standard says: Intense excitement prevails among the Americans residing here, in consequence of news received from Pekin that prominent Chinese officials have petitioned the government for the expulsion of all Americans from the country. It is reported that Prince Chun, the father of the emperor, is advocating the expulsion of Americans.

Catholic Conference.

BERNE, Aug. 31.—The Catholic conference at Berne has closed its sessions. It was decided to hold the next conference at Munich at 1890. The proposal which came from America for an international congress was adopted.

EDITORS' OFFICERS.

Proceedings of the National Editorial Association in Session in Detroit.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 31.—The National Editorial Association elected officers at yesterday's session, as follows: Charles A. Lee of Rhode Island, president; J. G. Staley, of Greenville, Ala., first vice-president; E. B. Fletcher of Morris, Ill., second vice-president; E. W. Stevens, of Columbia, Mo., treasurer; John J. Doren, of Dayton, O., corresponding secretary; William Kennedy, of Pittsburgh, Pa., recording secretary; R. L. Beney, of Boulder, Col., assistant secretary.

The next convention will be held at Boston in June, 1890. In the afternoon the editors were taken to Star Island in Lake St. Clair where a complimentary banquet was given them by the citizens of Detroit in the Star Island house. To date they will start on an excursion to Niagara Falls, arriving back in Detroit Monday morning when they will return to their homes.

Whites and Blacks at Fever Heat.

DURHAM, N. C., Aug. 31.—At Oxford Thursday afternoon two colored men raised a disturbance. Policeman Whitfield tried to arrest them, when they shot Whitfield five times, injuring him fatally. Several hundred whites caught the culprits in the suburbs of the town. The sheriff took them up. There is talk of an effort being made by the colored population to attack the jail and rescue the two colored men. In this event there will be serious trouble.

CRONIN SUSPECTS.
The Cases of Coughlin, Biggs and Sullivan Called in Court.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—When Judge McConnell's court opened yesterday at 10 o'clock State's Attorney Longenecker announced that the state was ready to proceed with the cases of Coughlin, Biggs, O'Sullivan and Burke. Judge Longenecker then asked the court to appoint his associate, counsel Luther Ladlin Mills, George Ingham and W. J. Hynes. The state's attorney explained that the case was too important for him to try alone, and that his assistants were engaged in other courts.

Mr. Forest, for the defense, objected to having it appear on the record, that these attorneys are appointed by the court and asked that it appear as usual, that they are engaged by private parties to assist the state. The court assented and the record will show that they are simply recognized as counsel by the state. It was agreed that a special venire should issue for fifty jurors returnable at 2 o'clock, and the prisoners were remanded to that hour. The rumor that Cooney is in the custody of the police or is kept in hiding by some of the friends of the prosecution is not believed.

At the afternoon session the prosecution appeared for the first time in its full strength, Messrs. Hynes, Mills, Ingham and Assistant State's Attorney Neely entering the room with Judge Longenecker, and taking their seats with him on the state's side of the lawyers' table. Opposite them were Messrs. Forest, Donahue, Foster, Amos, Senator Kennedy and Judge Wing, while behind them were their clients, the five prisoners on trial, Coughlin, Biggs and Kunz in the front row of three chairs and Burke and O'Sullivan bringing up the rear. When the court came to order, it appeared that forty-eight men had been summoned to act as jurors. Thirteen of this number were excused for various reasons.

This preliminary examination over the box was filled by twelve men. Judge Longenecker was about to test the qualifications of the twelve for jury service from the state's point of view, when Mr. Donahue made an objection to the appointment of Messrs. Mills, Ingham and Hynes as associate counsel for the state, on the ground that they had been engaged by private parties to appear in the case and had received money, or the promise of money from these private parties, who were anxious to secure the conviction of his clients. He further objected to Mr. Hynes, on the ground that he was actuated by motives of enmity to his clients, all of which he offered to prove by the testimony of the lawyers themselves and others.

Mr. Forest for Coughlin, and Senator Kennedy for Burke, also objected. State's Attorney Longenecker protested that it was too late for these objections, which had not been entered at the time he asked for the appointment of the counsel, and now that a jury was in the box to try the cause, the court could not yet another issue. Judge McConnell agreed with him and overruled the objections, to which ruling the usual exceptions were entered. Eight jurors were examined by the state, four of whom were accepted and four rejected. The court adjourned at 4:30 p.m.

A MINISTER MINER.

How the Rev. Huntington is Investigating in Northern Illinois.

STREATOR, Ill., Aug. 30.—The only preacher who has so far entered the coal fields of northern Illinois where hunger has been going on for four months, is the Rev. James O. T. Huntington, a high church Episcopalian from New York, a son of Bishop Huntington, of the same city, and a member of the order of the Holy Cross. He is an able advocate of Henry George's doctrine, which he disseminates among the workingmen by personal association.

In order to better study the condition of the miners he has laid aside his clerical garments and gone down into the mines with pick and shovel. He is fearless and vigorous in his utterances, though cool and judicious at all times when speaking to the miners on matters affecting their welfare. He made his first appearance in the character of a crusader at Streator last week, when 2,000 strikers listened to his advice, his encouraging words and able exposition of the meeting in Boston.

The veterans have been pouring out of the city all day at a rapid rate. Railroad reports show that 175,000 strangers passed through the gates of the two depots during the week. The amount of money spent in the city is placed at from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

Gen. Sherman and Corporal Tanner has left for the east.

The G. A. R. Adjourns.

Last Day's Session of the National Encampment.

THE PENSION QUESTION AGAIN.

It is Fully Discussed and the Encampment Finally Endorses Both the Disability and Per Diem Bills—Meeting of the New Council.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 31.—The National encampment adjourned sine die at 12:30. The pension question was again taken up at the opening of the sessions and debated at length. Finally, the following resolution was adopted: "That the action of the Twenty-second National encampment upon the matter of pension is hereby reaffirmed, and that the pension committee be, and is hereby instructed to use all possible means to secure legislation in accordance with the resolutions of that encampment."

By this action the encampment endorses both the disability and per diem bills for the second time. There was a prolonged discussion upon a resolution to promote legislation giving to all inmates of soldiers' homes, who desire to live outside of such homes, a pension of $12 monthly. It was vigorously opposed on the ground that if the disability bill is passed at the next session of congress the veterans would get the sum in question anyhow, whether they lived in the home or out of it.

Majority and minor reports were submitted on the proposition of the department of Massachusetts disbanding past departments and allowing them hereafter simply seats upon the floor of the encampment as visitors. The effect of this would have been to largely reduce the voting strength of the future bodies. The resolution was finally defeated by a vote of 181 to 38. An adverse report was presented and approved on the proposition to give the oldest Sons of Veterans a qualified membership in the order. It was decided that the quorum of posts with a membership of less than fifty should be five.

The committee reported favorably upon the resolution allowing all comrade who have been dropped from the roll, to be reinstated upon the payment of back dues.

A touching letter of thanks from Mrs. Sheridan, relating to the inaction in the last report of a memorial sheet and picture of her deceased husband, was read by Gen. Warner.

The council of administration was next appointed.

In a few well-chosen words, Gen. Warner expressed his appreciation of the confidence and support which had been extended him during his term of office and introduced his successor, Gen. Alger. The new commander-in-chief with the subordinate officers were formally installed with the usual ceremonies, and with three hearty cheers the delegates filed out of the hall.

After the adjournment of the National encampment the new council administration held its first meeting. Commander-in-Chief elect, Alger, presided, and Col. E. F. Wiget was selected secretary. The bond of the quartermaster general was fixed at $1,200; the adjutant general's at $1,000. It was decided that an executive committee of seven be appointed by the commander-in-chief at his earliest convenience.

The adjutant general was instructed to publish the chief features of the Boston encampment in five of the leading papers of the country.

Commander-in-Chief Alger said at the close of the meeting: "I shall issue my first general order as soon as I get home and have had time to rest and look over the field. It will be an account of this meeting and have something to say of the meeting in Boston."

The veterans have been pouring out of the city all day at a rapid rate. Railroad reports show that 175,000 strangers passed through the gates of the two depots during the week. The amount of money spent in the city is placed at from $750,000 to $1,000,000.

Gen. Sherman and Corporal Tanner has left for the east.

INJURED IN AN ELEVATOR.

The Elevator Boy and Five Nurses More or Less Injured.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31.—Two strands of the cable attached to the elevator at the Philadelphia Lying-in Charity hospital, Eleventh and Cherry streets, broke yesterday, and the car fell from the third floor to the basement. The elevator boy and five nurses who were in the car were all more or less injured, as follows: Head nurse, Miss Alice Mullings, slight contusion of ankle; Nurse Buttle, fracture of ankle joint; Nurse Chudy, spinal contusion and shock; Nurse Wilkinson, compound fracture of ankle joint; Nurse McDonnell, fracture of ankle joint; Frank Allen, elevator boy, knee sprained.

Miss Wilkinson's condition is said to be dangerous. The nurses were going down to the basement for dinner. The fall of the elevator shook the building and the screams of the injured women quickly brought assistance. The heavy cable fell down on the car and around the inmates, but fortunately did not hurt any one. The car was completely wrecked, and it is considered remarkable that no one was killed.

STONWALL JACKSON'S ONLY CHILD DEAD.

CHARLOTT, N. C., Aug. 30.—Mrs. W. E. Christian, nee Julia Jackson, only child of Stonewall Jackson, died here yesterday after two weeks' illness of typhoid fever. Her husband is the editor of a weekly paper, the Charlotte Democrat. Her mother resided with her and her husband. The remains will be taken to Lexington, Va., for interment.

MISSISSIPPI POLITICIANS KILLED.

SATARIA, Miss., Aug. 31.—James M. Newbaker was assassinated Wednesday night, about 9 o'clock, being riddled with buckshot while entering his own house. Newbaker was a prominent politician and a candidate for the state legislature before the last county nominating convention. About a year ago an attempt was made to renominate him.

IMPRISONED IN A MINE.

Forty-Five People Narrowly Escape Death from Drowning.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Aug. 31.—Forty-five men were at work in the Allegheny mine, thirteen miles from Cumberland, belonging to the Consolidated Coal company, Friday morning, when the wall between it and the adjoining worked-out Boston or Elkins mine gave way from pressure of water in the old mine. It flowed steadily in a strong stream over four feet in depth, and there were grave fears for the men inside.

Hours passed before any relief could be obtained by the men inside, and outside the deep concern of wives, children and loving friends were depicted on every countenance. Finally the water had subsided to a depth that would allow entrance to the mine and H. P. Meem, the engineer of the company, started in search of the imprisoned men, none of the outsiders being willing to venture. After wading through the water against a strong current up to his waist, he came to a group of forty-three men who told him of a man and boy being in a distant room.

No one would go to their relief. He started on and finding the two placed the man on his shoulders and bidding the boy to follow turned back and joined the group. The men seemed terrified and without judgment they declined to go forward, until after much persuasion, and then only after Meem had taken the lead with the child on his shoulders. Fortunately all escaped. The water was an accumulation of years and is still flowing at considerable depth, though with less force.

The loss to the coal company is said to be heavy, the fall extent will not be ascertained until the water has entirely subsided.

The secretary's belief is that bonds to a large amount could be obtained at the prices offered has been justified, and he has done what he could under the law to prevent monetary pressure, but the money disbursed seems likely to relieve speculation rather than commercial needs, at least until other operations besides the one in government bonds have been liquidated. Stocks have advanced just $2 per share in a week and 120,000 shares have been sold already at the rising prices.

As yet the money for bonds has not actually gone out of the treasury, and its cash holdings are a little larger than a week ago, but it deposits in banks half a million less. Business in all parts of the country continues to improve with the stimulus of large crops. Chicago reports immense increase in exports of grain and provisions, with considerable gain in sales of dry goods and clothing.

Milwaukee's finds trade improving; at Detroit and St. Paul previous improvement is maintained; at Omaha business is very good, and though trade in Kansas City is rather quiet, the demand for money is enlarging. At Cleveland and Pittsburgh the iron business is expanding, and at Philadelphia improvement is noted in wool, groceries and coal, and their products, and iron, with good trade in drugs and chemicals and tobacco. At Boston sales of wool are larger, reaching 2,000,000 pounds for the week, and the goods trade is large, with prices well maintained, a heavy demand for export is observed in leather, both soles and splits, and a good home demand, while boot and shoe factories are well employed at last year's prices and large building operations make the lumber trade more active.

The situation in the iron industry is surprisingly encouraging, for a weekly production hardly ever surpassed appears to be met by wonderful demand, although deliveries of rails continue below last year's. The Tennessee Coal and Iron company gives notice of an advance of twenty-five cents in its price for pig iron and the rise in the price of coke at Pittsburgh ensues some advance in pig iron, while bar, plate and structural iron are in strong demand, and the works better employed than they have been before for several years. Increase of wages is reported at several establishments, and the building of several more furnaces by the Carnegie works at Braddock.

The premises are still surrounded by a cordon of guards, and all the earth and debris previously carted away outside the city limits is being searched. Nothing has been found. It is firmly believed that much more gold will be eventually dug up, for Miguel received princely advances from the king and Mother church in Spain, and was known to have been miserly in his habits. The excitement has subsided somewhat, although the matter is still the talk of the town. The oldest coin of the lot was a ducatoon bearing date 1786.

BURNED BY MOLTEN METAL.

A Fatal Accident Occurs at the Carnegie Homestead Steel Works.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 31.—A ladle containing thirty tons of molten steel, with two twelve-ton ingots taken out, boiled over late yesterday afternoon, at Carnegie's Homestead Steel works, burning one man to death, one so bad that he died at 9 o'clock last night, and fatally burning two others, besides four others being seriously burned.

The dead are as follows: Andrew Keppler, leaves a wife and four children; Nicholas Bowers, 21 years of age, single; John Lewis, burned all over the body, cannot recover, 30 years of age and single; Joseph Durkay, 34 years of age, fatally burned; has a wife and two children in Hungary.

The seriously burned are: Isaac Sone, Lademann, burned all over, but will recover; Stephen Christ, badly burned, but will recover; has a wife and two children in Hungary; Michael Dzuris, 26 years of age, badly burned, but will recover; John Dudas, terribly burned, but will recover; has a wife and two children in Hungary.

One of the most heartrending features of the accident was the recovery of the body of Andrew Keppler. He had fallen into a quantity of the molten metal and a stream of water was kept playing on the mass until it became cold. Then the skeleton of the poor man was taken from the iron bed, and when removed there was a distinct outline of his body in the metal.

The Romance of the Headache.

"I went down to dinner resolved to be cheerful and well conducted, and kept my resolution very creditably, considering how my head ached and how interestingly wretched I felt" (The Tenant of Wildfell Hall). That is the keynote of too many pages in all the Brontë novels. The lady who writes has a headache, and feels internally wretched. She is "conducting herself very creditably, considering; but her dark brow shows how limited is the life she looks up to, and how a passionate heart eager for love and happiness beats itself against the wires of her little world.

When society is better or worse than it is today, when governesses no longer exist, these tales will tell people what life looked like to governesses. "In them we are always at the governess's point of view. A young lady who is a guest and not a guest, a servant and not a servant, poor and clever among the dull and rich, is watching them, despising them, detesting them, and taking her proud, envious notes of them and their ways. "Heaven was cruel when it made women," said one of George Eliot's people; society was savage when it made governesses.

Inevitably miserable themselves, they are the source of misery to others. They see the existence that is not theirs for their ears; young, it is their duty to interfere with the diversions of youth and to snub the high spirits of the school room. If they mix with the grown up people, it is under a pretense, which they silently make themselves; if they do not mix with them, they live in an artificial solitude, alone, while music and laughter and talk are echoing faintly not far away. No tact can make their position endurable, in a rule, no tact of their own nor of their employers, and they must feel more intensely even than other women a foolish desire for a justice which is not of this world.

This was the position of Charlotte Brontë. "No one but myself can tell how hard a governess's work is to me, for no one but myself is aware how utterly averse my whole mind and nature are to this employment,"—Andrew Lang in Good Words.

Eclectic Gardener.

In the amusing autobiography of Mr. Frith, R. A., a marvelous account is given of a gentleman having slipped unnoticed within the guarded grounds of Fonthill abbey, and then finding the eccentric owner, Mr. Beckford, whom he mistook for the gardener. They became very friendly, and the intruder was asked to stay and dine; but at 11 o'clock he was turned out, with the warning that bloodhounds ranged the park during the night. So the dismasted guest passed his night in a tree. The Rev. Dr. Gatty, writing to Notes and Queries, says:

"I have a parallel story. A deceased friend of mine—a well known squire in a midland county—told me many years ago that he was posting northward, and stopped at Rokeby to inspect the romantic scenery of Scott's poem. Mr. Morritt was alive, and as my friend wished to see his interesting house and grounds, he went forward and found, as he thought, the head gardener among the flower beds; and he asked him whether he thought Mr. Morritt would receive a call from a stranger. He was told to go to the front door, when he would be informed whether it would be permitted. My friend did as he was bidden, and he found that by a slight metamorphosis of clothes, etc., the supposed gardener had become the master of the house, who gave him hospitable entertainment for a day or two"—London Standard.

Gounod's First Composition.

The following story is told about the beginning of Gounod's career as a musician: Gounod's parents did not at all fancy his taking up music. They took counsel on the subject with the head master of the school which their son attended, with the following result: "You son become a minister? Never, sir," replied the master. "He has a decided aptitude for Latin and Greek." The next day Master Charles was called in at M. Poisson's study. "Well, sir, they tell me you've been caught writing music." "Oh, yes, I want to be a musician." "You a musician? Why, that's no profession at all. But here is some paper and a pen. Write me a new air on the words from Joseph, 'Scarcely merged from infancy.' Then we shall see what you can do," said the professor, delighted at the cleverness of his device. It was the noon recess. Before the bell rang to resume studies Gounod was back with his page blank with crochets and quavers. "What, already?" said the professor. "Well, sing it." Gounod sat down to the piano and sang, and the tears soon began to gather in the head master's eyes. He embraced his pupil and exclaimed: "You shall study music."—Albany Express.

Novel Antidote.

In these days of the prevalent abuse of tobacco it is well to know that many habitual tobacco users have been cured by the following plan: Those who smoke their first cigarette, say, at 5 o'clock in the morning, begin putting it off just ten minutes past the hour for a few days, then make it fifteen or twenty minutes, and so on until it will be noon and then might before the first one is smoked. It is a slow but sure way of tapering off if faithfully followed, and can be applied by the abusers of stimulants as well as of tobacco.—Exchange.

A WOMAN CARPENTER.

SHE HAS A SHOP OF HER OWN AND IS A SKILLFUL ARTISAN.

Having a Taste for Working in Wood, She Bought Tools and Soon Mastered Them. A Woman Can Do Such Work Without Doing the Less Woman.

Sensible women who want to make money do not wander "all around Robin Hood's barn," as our grandmothers used to say, after an occupation. They look for something nearer home and study the needs of other women with the idea of supplying their wants.

What is more wonderful than being a carpenter? And who but a woman who knows how to keep house understands the value of a woman carpenter to respond to her many needs for domestic devices?

Mrs. Leyton, a pretty, clever little woman, has opened a carpenter shop up town. She is a young married woman and has a fine, healthy boy baby playing in the shavings about her carpenter's bench.

A BABY IN THE SHOP.

The next little white frame house in which this pretty carpenter lives has a grass plot at the back, and at the end of the yard is a shed covered with morning glories, in which she plies her trade.

"What put it into you head to become a carpenter?" was the first question asked of the sweet-faced little matron, and she had signified her willingness to be interviewed.

"My own needs prompted me," she replied, as she planned away at the top of a pine table. "I have a taste for wood carving, and before I was married I had done a good deal of ornamental work of that sort. When I married and began house-keeping I had to solve the problem of furnishing my home with little money. In these days of artistic furnishings, this is by no means a difficult one, but what is difficult is to find a carpenter to carry out one's ideas. What is the use of having a nice, delicate, artistic idea about a bookcase or a table or a cupboard if you must confide it to some untrained ignoramus of a carpenter?"

"I perceive," replied the interviewer, gravely.

"She was a woman herself and understood the situation.

"Now, I met with exactly this experience," said Mrs. Leyton, as she seated herself on a bench, picked up her baby and weeded out the bits of shavings from his blonde curls. "The consequence was that I bought a set of carpenter's tools and some pine boards and constructed my frames for myself. Thus, between rough carpentering and the art of wood carving, I about finished my own house."

"I fitted up this shed as a carpenter's shop and sent circulars about the neighborhood. This was a year ago. Orders began to come in almost immediately, because, you see, I had appealed to the necessities of the people, and that is the first step toward money making."

Here the little matron laughed in a cheery, contented way and hugged her little son, who was half asleep.

"Of course, when I was first married," she continued, "I never thought of working for myself, but after a couple of years of experience of life, I came to the conclusion that an occupation is as necessary to a married woman as to a single one. So I hired an extra servant to relieve me of the household duties. I detest housework, and love fiddling with hammer and saws—and I became a professional carpenter."

"All right, what's your name?"

"Worthington P. Billingsham."

"Good enough, Becky," he called.

"Yes," a woman answered.

"Where's the baby?"

"In the wagon asleep."

"Well, wake him up an' name him after this morn. Good day if you are gone, mister. Don't care if you don't hold no office, you are the greatest man I ever saw."

"Arkansas Traveler."

How to Be Clever.

It is only when a minister preaches out of his own heart that he reaches the hearts of others. A purely intellectual sermon stoppeth the intellect; a doctrinal sermon nothing more than a spiritual epate. But let a man utter what he has felt and known, let him touch the heart that has vibrated in his own soul, and the come that hush and spell over an audience, that charmed attention, that lifting of faces which seems like a white tablet for God's finger to write on. Who has not felt the irresistible power of a huddled experience interpreted by another soul? This is the secret of all oratory, of all sympathetic power of man over man. The greatest preachers are not those who may lay claim to the high scholarship, whom profound philosophical thinkers or doctrinal giants, but whose large hearts have thrilled with the deepest spiritual experience. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." These are men who can lay hold on vast audiences and sway them as the wind sways a forest. Their language may be plain, their style unpolished, their manner awkward, but they know the stops and keys of the human heart as the organist knows his instrument, and all the soul in a sweet music of life answers to their touch.—Zion's Herald.

A SAMPLE CUSTOMER.

There was a ring at the card table, which was presently opened by a good looking personage. A tall, thin, some young woman entered and crossed the grass plot to the carpenter's shed. Mrs. Leyton gave her baby into the man's arms and turned to her customer.

The customer was evidently a young bride and very much impressed with the dignity of her position. She had made a design for a dining room built to fit into an alcove. She had brought her design with her and submitted it to the pretty carpenter.

"All right, what's your name?"

"Good enough, Becky," he called.

"Yes," a woman answered.

"Where's the baby?"

"In the wagon asleep."

"Well, wake him up an' name him after this morn. Good day if you are gone, mister. Don't care if you don't hold no office, you are the greatest man I ever saw."

SMITH.

The lines from an old ballad, quoted by Shakespeare in King Lear:

By the light of the moon,

I smelt the fair Englishman,

He founded upon a physiologist fact,

For by the sense of smell the blind frequently detected the habits, occupation and social standing of a person.

Mr. Levy, a blind man, records that he had one morning a talk with a workman.

"You have had a red herring for breakfast, you have smoked a pipe of tobacco and you have just lighted a fire."

As the man had carefully washed himself after lighting the fire and breakfasting, the blind man's sense of smell must have been acute to detect all three odors in succession.

"You have had fish here," said this same blind man to a clerk on entering a London shop.

The clerk said that they had not, but the blind man insisting that there was the smell of fish in the store, the clerk tenaciously坚持 that a fish had been to pay a bill, which was in a house next to a fish dealer's stand.—Youth's Companion.

THE GREATEST MAN.

The Sure Sign by Which the "Mover" Recognized a Superior Being.

A man riding along a road came upon an old fellow who, loud in voice and violent in action, was endeavoring to start a hulky team. The horseback traveler, annoyed at the old fellow's productive resource of strong adjectives, stopped, threw one leg over the horn of his saddle, and without saying anything sat watching the performance. The covered wagon to which the team was attached was the "mover's" typical vehicle, with two chairs tied behind. A woman, three children, a mule colt and a dog belonged to the outfit.

"If I just had enough money to take us fifty miles I'd cut your infernal throats!" the old fellow shouted, as he leaned for a moment's rest on a piece of rail with which he had been laboring at the horses.

"You can pull out of here, easy enough, you infernal scoundrels. Why, a jack rabbit and a wasp can't hit you in the back!"

"Anderson," said the woman, "why don't you hold some folder before them?"

"Confound it, didn't you see me do that just awhile ago?"

"Well, why don't you stick a pin in their flanks?"

"Haven't you got any sense at all? Didn't you see me stick 'em with a darning needle just now? You better go off somewhere an' run with the stuckin' calves."

"I'm not the governor,"

"No. Well, you must be secretary of state."

"I am not, however."

"But you must be a great man of some sort."

"No, I am simply a country merchant."

"It's mighty strange, then."

"How strange? I don't in the least understand you. Why do you take me to be a great man?"

"Because a fellow that can set an' watch a hulky team and not offer any suggestion must be great—in fact, you are the first man of that sort I ever did see. You deserve greatness anyhow, I'll tell you, and I feel it my duty to do something for you. I've got a fine little dog and a good dog, and they are your own if you'll take them."

"No, I thank you."

"Here are five dollar bill, all the money I've got, but you may have it."

"I won't take it."

"Well, I feel like givin' you somethin'."

"Say, you wouldn't mind me makin' a boy after you, would you?"

"No."

"All right, what's your name?"

"Worthington P. Billingsham."

"Good enough, Becky," he called.

"Yes," a woman answered.

"Where's the baby?"

"In the wagon asleep."

"Well, wake him up an' name him after this morn. Good day if you are gone, mister. Don't care if you don't hold no office, you are the greatest man I ever saw."

"Arkansas Traveler."

How to Be Clever.

It is only when a minister preaches out of his own heart that he reaches the hearts of others. A purely intellectual sermon stoppeth the intellect; a doctrinal sermon nothing more than a spiritual epate. But let a man utter what he has felt and known, let him touch the heart that has vibrated in his own soul, and the come that hush and spell over an audience, that charmed attention, that lifting of faces which seems like a white tablet for God's finger to write on. Who has not felt the irresistible power of a huddled experience interpreted by another soul? This is the secret of all oratory, of all sympathetic power of man over man. The greatest preachers are not those who may lay claim to the high scholarship, whom profound philosophical thinkers or doctrinal giants, but whose large hearts have thrilled with the deepest spiritual experience. "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." These are men who can lay hold on vast audiences and sway them as the wind sways a forest. Their language may be plain, their style unpolished, their manner awkward, but they know the stops and keys of the human heart as the organist knows his instrument, and all the soul in a sweet music of life answers to their touch.—Zion's Herald.

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

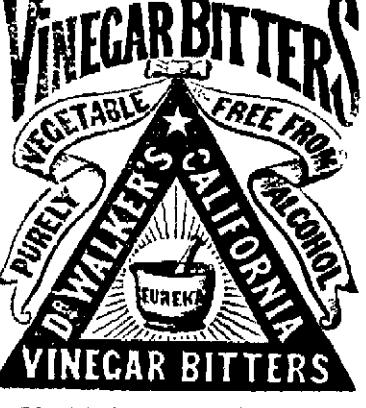

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is simmered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly driving the market under various names, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them?

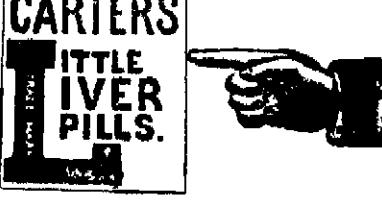

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who try it, once try it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

The ladies of the Home Mission society of the M. E. church will have a fair at the residence of John King, west Center street, Wednesday afternoon. Ice cream will be served. All are invited.

The fourth quarterly meeting of the L. B. church will be held tomorrow, Sept. 1st. Rev. W. J. Davis, presiding elder, is expected. Quarterly conference tonight, and sacramental service tomorrow.

The fine entrance to the Marion cemetery has been completed, and the improvement is very creditable. Every thing about Marion's beautiful city of the dead is always of a first class order.

Col. Sargent has the new raised floor at Music Hall about completed, and it will certainly prove a boon to theater-goers. The floor extends clear back and is built in sections, so that dancing can still be enjoyed there.

The Marion Inquirer reports B. L. Glikson, agent of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, in this section of Ohio, missing. Glikson wanted to rent Music Hall here, before he concluded to pull out.

Upper Sandusky is so hilariously happy over her little theater works about to be built that we feel like loaning the dear old town one of our booming factories just to show them what industry is. The town would be frantic, we fear.

A great deal of interest is being manifested by the ladies in the forthcoming features by Mrs. Dennis Miller. Tickets are selling rapidly and a general air of enthusiasm as to what an emancipated woman looks like prevails the atmosphere.

Galon Inquirer: A game of base ball for a purse $25 will be played between Marion and the Erie team, on Sept. 12th, the first day of the fair. It will be a great game, and like all other attractions during the fair there will be no admission charged.

The Electric Light company has been having quite a boom in connection with the week. Masonic Hall is to be lighted by both the arc and incandescent system, and the commercial circuit will take in Farny & Rhoads, Eckhard, W. H. Gordon & Company, Fristrom & Young and Prendergast's.

A special train service will be put on the C. H. V. and T. during the Ohio State Fair. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September the 3d and 4th, a special train will leave Carey at 5:15 a.m., passing Marion at 6:45, and on some dates, a special will leave Columbus at 6 p.m., running as far north as Fort Wayne.

The city bonds sold to Spatz & Company, of Toledo, Aug. 19th, were not given to that firm but were paid with the U. S. bid for the sum of $15,000. Spatz & Company played the role of schemers and waited in plain English, the bonds at less than they bid. The court very sensibly ruled that the sale to Mr. Uhler.

The barber shop recently started by A. Beatty in West Marion attracted the attention of burglars on Friday night or this week, and was thoroughly ransacked, and about $15 in barber supplies was carried away. Entrance to the shop was gained by a pane of glass being removed from a window. There is no clue to the identity of the thieves.

Mrs. O. W. Johnson, Pres. FANNY PERIN, Sec.

A. Bonner of Boone, Zanesville speed out Aug. 22d, contains the following bit of Black Diamond news. Somewhat of a local sensation was created here today by the filing of a suit by Col. A. L. Boone against Chase Andrews, who resigned the presidency of the Zanesville and Ohio river railroad last week, in order that there might be a reorganization in favor of bondholders. Boone, who is the Black Diamond railroad projector, alleges in his petition that Andrews, Thomas J. Brady, P. B. Lilly, Henry M. Baker and him organized a syndicate in Washington in 1881 to build a railroad from Zanesville to Point of Rocks, via Hamer, with branches to the Perry county coal fields; that Andrews was made trustee and became treasurer, and that the plan has been consummated by the building of the first-named road to Hamer, and the Muskingum river to Shawnee. He claims Andrews has sold with other members of the syndicate, but his demand for a statement of the profits made has been ignored. An injunction was issued, on the filing of a bid for $50,000, restraining Andrews and the two railroad companies from selling or transferring stock, bonds or coal until the case is heard. It is said that $500,000 is involved, as the bonds were bonded for $3,000,000.

After Breakfast.

You may take the most elegant and complete vestibule train ever constructed, leaving Chicago daily at 10:15 a.m., via the Chicago and Atlantic railway. These magnificent trains offer unsurpassed accommodations for all classes of travel to New York, Boston and eastern cities. Pullman dining cars are a feature of this new departure and run through in either direction between Chicago and New York. Instead of exacting extra charges for fast time and the peerless accommodations proffered, the Chicago and Atlantic through its own agencies and those of connecting lines quotes fares to eastern cities from $1.50 to $3.00 less than is charged by other routes.

Consult your local ticket agent on this important item, or for maps, folders and time cards giving full information of the Chicago and Atlantic, New York and Chicago restricted limited carrying all classes of passengers.
